This website is operated by Emma Fairbrother, trading as Do Some Work.

Information I collect

If you contact me by email, I will receive the information you choose to provide, which may include your name, email address and details about your project or enquiry.

Like most websites, this site and its service providers may also process limited technical information such as IP addresses, browser information and security logs to help keep the website secure and functioning properly.

How I use your information

I use personal information to:

- respond to enquiries;
- discuss potential projects and services;
- provide design services where requested;
- maintain business and financial records;
- protect the security and operation of the website.

Legal basis

I process personal information where it is necessary for my legitimate interests in running my design business and responding to enquiries.

Where work is commissioned, I may also process information where necessary to take steps before entering into a contract or to perform a contract.

Sharing information

I do not sell personal information.

Information may be processed by service providers that help me run my business, such as website hosting, email and website security providers.

Retention

I keep personal information only for as long as reasonably necessary for business, legal, accounting and tax purposes.

Your rights

Under UK data protection law, you may have rights to access, correct, erase or restrict the use of your personal information, and to object to certain processing.

To exercise any of these rights, please get in touch using the email address below.

Complaints

If you have any concerns about how I handle your personal information, please contact me first.

You also have the right to complain to the Information Commissioner's Office if you believe your personal information has been handled unlawfully.
